Polyhedral configurations of infinitely near points

(A. Campillo)

By blowing up configurations of infinitely near points one gets some special varieties. Polyhedral configurations are those special ones for which the cone of curves of the blow up variety is polyhedral. We review and discuss some sufficient conditions for configurations to be polyhedral as well as some recent applications, mainly those due to F. Monserrat.